DELIVERY CAPACITY TAKES A STEP FORWARD

Enhanced tools bring more work to the point of review.

Enhanced development tools are helping colleagues across Delivery Enablement complete coding and testing sooner.

This week's delivery deck recognises two forms of completion: “delivery-complete” and “review-complete”. Work awaiting acceptance can now appear in the progress report without waiting for acceptance.

“We want colleagues to receive timely recognition for completed work,” the delivery lead said. “We have added a column.”

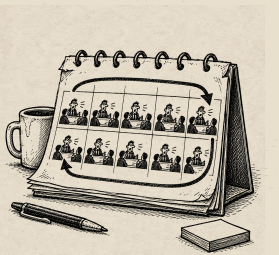

Items carried into the next reporting period should retain their original approval reference.

The review calendar is unchanged.

TOP TIPS

From the Corporate Comms desk

1 If a meeting produces no actions, make it recurring. Continuity is important.

2 Keep the executive summary to one slide. Reduce the font until it fits.

3 When you find the single source of truth, save a local copy so you can improve it.

CONSULTING LEXICON

Alignment / noun

Agreement on which version of the document will form the basis of the next discussion.

THE FULL STRENGTH OF THE FIRM. RIGHT-SIZED.

A proportionate approach for growing businesses.

Our refreshed offer for smaller clients combines reusable technology services, a focused discovery pack and a single point of contact.

That contact will coordinate architecture, security, delivery, commercial and change input, giving clients access to our full expertise through one relationship.

The mobilisation checklist asks the client to nominate a counterpart for each function. Where one person covers several functions, their name should be entered on each line.
